

Human rights organization finds U.S.-trained forces in Burkina Faso summarily executed 223 people

Image not found or type unknown

The women's mosque in the center of Soro village, Thiou district, northern Yatenga province, Burkina Faso. March 2024 © 2024 Private

New York, April 27 (RHC)-- Burkina Faso's U.S.-trained military forces "summarily executed" at least 223 civilians, including dozens of children, across several villages in the northern Yatenga province in late February.

According to a new report by Human Rights Watch, the extrajudicial mass killings are part of a widespread military campaign to exterminate residents accused of collaborating with Islamic militants.

Executive Director of New York-based Human Rights Watch Tirana Hassan said in a statement: "The repeated failure of the Burkinabè authorities to prevent and investigate such atrocities underlines why international assistance is critical to support a credible investigation into possible crimes against humanity."

<https://www.radiohc.cu/index.php/en/noticias/internacionales/353293-human-rights-organization-finds-us-trained-forces-in-burkina-faso-summarily-executed-223-people>

Radio Habana Cuba