The Lebanese resistance movement Hezbollah says it has targeted Israel's Gilot military base and Mossad headquarters on the outskirts of Tel Aviv with salvos of Fadi-4

Beirut, October 1 (RHC)-- The Lebanese resistance movement Hezbollah says it targeted Israel's Gilot military base and Mossad headquarters on the outskirts of Tel Aviv with salvos of Fadi-4 rockets.

Israeli sources reported several settlers were injured in the rocket barrage from Lebanon on Tel Aviv. The reports said the rocket attack from Lebanon was "the largest" since the beginning of the war.

Hezbollah earlier said it struck gatherings of Israeli troopers in artillery and rocket attacks on the northern part of the occupied Palestinian territories in retaliation for Israel's deadly strikes on Lebanon.

In separate statements released on Tuesday, the resistance movement said the gatherings of the enemy troops were hit at the Shtula, Metulla, Avivim and Rosh Pina settlements.

The resistance also targeted the Doviv barracks with a Falaq-2 rockets as well as the gathering of Israeli forces near the settlement of Rosh Pina with a rocket barrage. Hezbollah added that it had conducted the operations in support of "steadfast Palestinian people in the Gaza Strip and ... their valiant and honorable resistance, and in defense of Lebanon and its people."

The attacks came amid a major escalation in Israel's acts of terror and aggression in Lebanon that saw the regime assassinating Hezbollah Secretary General Sayyed Hassan Nasrallah in an airstrike on southern Beirut.

The death toll from Israeli aerial assaults across Lebanon since early October 2023 has reached 1,745 with some 8,767 injured, according to Lebanese government data. In response, Hezbollah has fired barrages of rockets and drones towards Israeli targets.

The deadly exchange of fire was sparked by Israel's genocidal war on the Gaza Strip, which has killed 41,615 Palestinians, mostly women and children, and wounded 96,359 others over the past year.
