Venezuela is one of Cuba's main economic partners

Havana, Oct 17 (RHC) The Venezuela-Cuba Business Opportunities Forum takes place today in Caracas, with the aim of promoting the presence of Venezuelan products and services at the upcoming Havana International Fair (FIHAV).

The meeting is attended by representatives from the Venezuelan government, including the Bank for Foreign Trade, Business, and Export Promotion. Diplomats from both countries will also be present.

The forum is part of a series of events organized by the diplomatic mission to celebrate the 40th anniversary of FIHAV.

Rubén Ramos, head of the Commercial Economic Office of the Embassy in Havana, noted that FIHAV will be held from November 4 to 9. He also mentioned the development of business forums with representatives from several Venezuelan states, including Anzoátegui, Carabobo, Aragua, and Portuguesa.

Ramos emphasized that Venezuela's participation at the fair is very important, since the South American country is one of Cuba's main economic partners.

The Venezuela-Cuba Business Opportunities Forum includes a presentation on trade opportunities and general information about the program for the Havana Fair.

Some activities organized between the Venezuelan delegation and their Cuban counterparts include an investment forum on November 5-6, the celebration of Venezuela's National Day, and a business forum with face-to-face meetings. (Source: Prensa Latina)
