

Far-right pundit Sebastian Gorka returns to Trump White House, recently claimed Palestine doesn't exist

Image not found or type unknown

Image Credit: Gage Skidmore / Wikimedia Commons

Washington, November 25 (RHC)-- Donald Trump has named controversial far-right pundit Sebastian Gorka to become senior National Security Council director for counterterrorism and deputy assistant to the president. It's a top post that does not require Senate confirmation.

Gorka advised Trump in his first term but was pushed out after The Forward revealed he once had ties to a Hungarian far-right, Nazi-allied group and that he supported an antisemitic and racist paramilitary militia in Hungary while he served as a Hungarian politician.

During an interview earlier this month on the Russian broadcaster RT, Gorka denied Palestine exists.

Afshin Rattansi: "Why can't you talk about genocide in Gaza? And is that the same with all of the Trump administration?"

Sebastian Gorka: "Because there isn't any genocide in Gaza. A, there is no such thing as Palestine. Do you know what the etymology of the word 'Palestinian' is? It was a name invented by the Roman Empire to insult Jews."

[SOURCE: DEMOCRACY NOW]

<https://www.radiohc.cu/index.php/en/noticias/internacionales/370567-far-right-pundit-sebastian-gorka-returns-to-trump-white-house-recently-claimed-palestine-doesnt-exist>

Radio Habana Cuba