

Mufid Abdulqader freed after 16 years behind bars for work with pro-Palestinian charity in Texas

Image not found or type unknown

Dallas, December 13 (RHC)-- A Palestinian American man who was convicted and imprisoned in 2008 for his work with the Texas-based charity Holy Land Foundation has been released from federal prison.

Mufid Abdulqader, one of the so-called Holy Land 5, was released to a halfway house Thursday.

Abdulqader and his four co-defendants — Ghassan Elashi, Shukri Abu Baker, Mohammad El-Mezain and Abdulrahman Odeh — received sentences of up to 65 years under the George W. Bush administration, accused of working for a so-called "terrorist" organization.

The Holy Land Foundation raised millions of dollars for Palestinians living under Israeli occupation, making it a target for pro-Israel groups in the United States. Their case was widely denounced as political persecution during the height of the so-called war on terror and shuttered what was once the largest Muslim charity in the United States.

Shukri Abu Baker and Ghassan Elashi remain behind bars.

[SOURCE: DEMOCRACY NOW]

<https://www.radiohc.cu/index.php/en/noticias/internacionales/371975-mufid-abdulqader-freed-after-16-years-behind-bars-for-work-with-pro-palestinian-charity-in-texas>

Radio Habana Cuba