

Mass anti-AfD protests continue in Germany as far right gathers for Make Europe Great Again summit

Image not found or type unknown

Madrid, February 11 (RHC)-- In Madrid, leaders of Europe's extreme-right parties gathered Saturday at an event organized by Spain's Vox party called "Make Europe Great Again."

Attendees railed against immigration and hailed Trump's return to office.

Speakers included Italy's Deputy Premier Matteo Salvini, French National Rally party leader Marine Le Pen and Hungarian Prime Minister Viktor Orbán.

Prime Minister Viktor Orbán said: "The Trump tornado has changed the world in just a few weeks. An era has ended. Yesterday we were their heretics; today we are the mainstream."

Meanwhile, in Germany, at least 200,000 protesters rallied in Munich Saturday against the far-right, anti-immigrant Alternative for Germany party, or AfD, which is polling in second place two weeks ahead of national elections.

[SOURCE: DEMOCRACY NOW]

<https://www.radiohc.cu/index.php/en/noticias/internacionales/376296-mass-anti-afd-protests-continue-in-germany-as-far-right-gathers-for-make-europe-great-again-summit>

Radio Habana Cuba