National Women's Volleyball Championship

Camagüey, Mar 19 (ACN) The National Women's Volleyball Championship continues its development at the Rafael Fortún Hall in Camagüey, venue that hosts this important event until next Saturday.

On Tuesday, the teams from Havana and Pinar del Río reaffirmed their dominance by maintaining their undefeated records after beating Camagüey and Granma, respectively.

Havana showed a solid and convincing game by easily defeating the current national champion, Camagüey, in a match that evidenced the difference between both teams.

Despite being the defending champion, Camagüey presented a renewed and inexperienced lineup, which hindered its performance against a more consistent opponent.

For its part, Pinar del Río also showed its strength by beating Granma in a match that kept the fans in suspense.

The Pinar del Río team, known for its discipline and technique, managed to win and consolidate itself as one of the favorites in this competition.

Another outstanding result of the day was the victory of Cienfuegos over Santiago de Cuba with a score of three sets to one.

This victory allowed the Cienfuegos team to score valuable points in their aspiration to stay in the fight for the top places in the competition.

The format of the tournament, which follows a round-robin system, has generated exciting confrontations and has tested the capacity of each team.

It should be noted that the last place at the end of the competition will be eliminated from the 2026 edition, which adds an additional component of intensity and competitiveness to each match.

This championship is not only vital to define the best team in the country, but also represents an essential platform for the development of women's volleyball in Cuba.

The competition allows the younger players to gain experience, while the more veteran players demonstrate their quality and leadership on the court.

In addition, the event contributes to the promotion and popularization of this sport in the country, attracting fans and generating an atmosphere of enthusiasm around volleyball.
