

Afghanistan's Opium Poppy Crop Hits Record High, Despite $7 Billion in U.S. Funds

Kabul, November 20 (RHC)-- The cultivation of opium poppies in Afghanistan reached an all-time high last year, despite more than $7 billion in U.S. funds to combat the drug trade.

In a recent report, the special inspector general for Afghanistan reconstruction, John Sopko, said the record levels "[call] into question the long-term effectiveness and sustainability" of U.S. efforts.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/index.php/en/noticias/internacionales/39678-afghanistans-opium-popy-crop-hits-record-high-despite-7-billion-in-us-funds>

Radio Habana Cuba