

Google Admits Handing Over Private WikiLeaks E-mails to U.S. Government

New York, January 31 (RHC)-- Google has revealed it secretly gave the U.S. government the e-mail messages and metadata of three top members of the whistleblowing organization WikiLeaks — investigations editor Sarah Harrison, section editor Joseph Farrell, and spokesperson Kristinn Hrafnsson, a longtime Icelandic journalist.

The U.S. government requested the information in 2012 as part of an alleged conspiracy and espionage investigation targeting WikiLeaks founder Julian Assange.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/index.php/en/noticias/internacionales/45336-google-admits-handing-over-private-wikileaks-e-mails-to-us-government>

Radio Habana Cuba