

Havana Welcomes Growing Numbers of Spanish Tourists

Havana, August 15 (RHC)-- Spanish tourists showed a marked preference in the Cuban capital, Havana, and the Argentinian capital, Buenos Aires, to spend their vacations during the month of July, this according to the specialized travel agency Yetcost.

A tourism report issued by the Madrid-based agency, reveals that the Cuban capital was placed fourth among all foreign destinations preferred by the Spanish tourists, after London, Paris and Rome, in that order. The same report placed Buenos Aires, the Argentinian capital, in the sixth position.

Created in 2006, the Yetcost travel agency operates inexpensive trips in Europe. It currently operates trips in 38 countries, including Asia and Latin America.
