

Sports News Roundup September 11

---

Chess World Cup Starts in Baku

The Chess World Cup 2015 starts Friday. The list of foreign competitors does not include the host. The head position is for the Bulgarian. Naturally, they will debut in encounters. A Latin American duel will take place. Meanwhile, the best chess player in the world. Cuba will have four other players at the event. The Cup predicts matches by the system of round-robin. Only two days of general rest are scheduled.

Cuban Baseball Series

An error committed by third baseman... Matanzas has a record so far of three... Other teams which completed the series... In others games, Villa Clara beat Pinar del Rio.

Penn State baseball team plans trip

The Penn State baseball team has a trip planned for Thanksgiving. The Nittany Lions will spend Thanksgiving in Baku. In partnership with the Centro de Estudios de la Universidad de Pennsylvania. "This is an incredible educational and cultural experience." A number of details still need to be confirmed.

FIFA Presidential Candidates Under Scrutiny

All presidential candidates of the Federal International Football Association are under scrutiny. At the end of the day, it goes down to the merits of the accusations. The ethical measure is part of Scala's eight-point reform plan, which was presented to the FIFA Congress. One of the three front runners, Chung Mong-Joon from South Korea, has said the measure is a necessary step. The Union of European Football Associations president (UEFA), Michel Platini also faces accusations.

Women wrestlers possible in Olympics

The president of the international wrestling federation says there's a possibility of women's wrestling in the 2020 Olympics. United World Wrestling head Nenad Lalovic said at the world championships that the sport is ready for inclusion.

Radio Habana Cuba