

Visiting Namibian President Tours Cuban Scientific Centers

Havana, September 16 (RHC)-- Namibian President Doctor Hage Gottfried Geingob, on an official visit to Cuba, toured several scientific institutions as part of his agenda.

The African leader visited the National Center for Drug Control and held talks with representatives of the Carlos Finlay Institute, a scientific organization dedicated to the research and production of human vaccines, some of which are prestigious and internationally recognized.

Earlier during his visit, the Namibian president paid tribute to Cuba's National Hero José Martí, and held talks with Cuban President Raul Castro.
