

Researchers Find Rare Remains of Small Dinosaur in Eastern United States

New York, December 5 (RHC)-- Archaeologists have discovered rare remains of a dog-like dinosaur in the United States.

According to reports, nearly 100 million years ago, the plant-eating creature lived in a region called "Appala-chia" in what is today the eastern United States.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/index.php/en/noticias/internacionales/77907-researchers-find-rare-remains-of-small-dinosaur-in-eastern-united-states>

Radio Habana Cuba