

Venezuela: Families of Violence Victims Reject Proposed Amnesty

Caracas, January 19 (RHC)-- Families of the 43 Venezuelans killed during extremist actions in 2014, have rejected an Amnesty Bill, being promoted by right-wing lawmakers that intends to free the people responsible for the violence.

Asdrubal González, Human Rights National Network Coordinator, said that the group handed a petition to parliament, demanding their participation in the debates should the proposal come up for discussion.
