

Western Media Justify U.S.-led Coalition in Syria Using Russia Strikes Footage

Washington, February 10 (RHC)-- A new report says that the U.S.-led coalition in Syria seems to be plagiarizing footage of the achievements made by the Russian warplanes in their campaign against the Daesh Takfiri terrorist group and other terror organizations active in the Arab country.

According to a report published by RT on Tuesday, the state-owned France 2 television channel broadcast a report on February 2, slamming the Russian campaign in Syria and at the same time praising the achievements made by the U.S.-led coalition there while airing footage of anti-terror airstrikes conducted by the Russian jets and passing them off as those of the coalition's operations.
