

New Ayotzinapa Probe Begins as Many Questions Still Unanswered

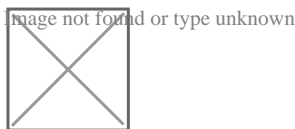

Guerrero, February 29 (RHC)-- In Mexico, federal prosecutors and independent experts launched a new round of investigation on Sunday to study debris at the Cocula garbage dump, where authorities claim the remains of the 43 disappeared Ayotzinapa students were burned.

According to a statement from the Attorney General's office, the study will be carried out with common "objectives and conditions" agreed upon by both federal investigators and the Interdisciplinary Group of International Experts, known as GIEI, working on the case.

The new expert investigation is expected to conclude and deliver findings of the investigation by the end of March, according to the Mexican daily La Jornada.
