

Havana Reaffirms Its Support to Constitutionality in Brazil

Havana, Apr 1 (RHC) The Movement of Solidarity with Cuba reaffirmed, in Havana's Cuban Institute of Friendship with the Peoples, its defense of constitutionality and democracy in Brazil, threatened by a coup attempt.

The members of the movement were critic of the right wing violence and intolerance against the government of President Dilma Rousseff, winner of democratic elections.

Kenia Serrano, president of the Friendship Institute, highlights the relevance of solidarity with the Brazilian people's fight to fend off serious threats to the social achievements during the years with the Workers' Party in power.
